Dear Mr. Ahmad:

Although we have completed the interview on your application we cannot make a decision on your case because the required security checks are incomplete. Once the background investigation is completed we will make and inform you of our decision as quickly as possible.

We understand that you may be frustrated by this news. However, in order to fulfill its mission to provide immigration benefits and services to the public, USCIS must balance its obligations to the individual applicant against its obligations to the public as a whole. Consequently, we have adopted enhanced security check procedures.

Given the significance of immigration benefits and the number of applications submitted, it is inevitable that some applications will require more attention than others. Some factors that may lead to delays are the volume of record checks, the number of records to be checked and the processing of common names. For the vast majority of applicants, USCIS is able to quickly determine whether there is any criminal or security related eligibility issues. In the remaining cases, often referred to as "pending," a match of some kind has been identified and must be resolved before a decision can be made on the case. However, a match does not always lead to a denial of the application. USCIS does not share information regarding the specific nature of the match or the nature or status of any investigation with applicants or their representatives.

We remain committed to processing cases within a reasonable period of time. In some cases, however, unresolved security concerns will create delays. We ask for your patience in such cases, and in return we promise to continue to seek resolution as quickly as possible in each individual case.

Sincerely,
